

Goodies

They were sitting at the table, eating and talking. It was very cold and rainy outside. Megan ate really slowly. She looked bored, talking to this handsome guy. Megan was a beautiful, young woman, who wore make-up and was also fashionably dressed. The young man who sat opposite of her talked very much and he asked her something every minute, but she answered quickly. As they finished eating, they just sat there, as they would wait for someone. The two teenagers looked around for a long time, then the guy asked her "Why are you so quiet and discreet today?". Megan told him, that she had just had a bad day. For one moment it was silent and subsequently the young man asked her, if she wanted to talk about her "bad day". The young woman didn't respond, but she looked frustrated and depressed. He looked a bit shocked, because he remembered that today was Valentine`s day. Jim thought that Megan expected a gift for Valentine`s day, but their relationship was a bit complicated. They knew each other for seven years now. He loved her really much, although they were just best friends who met every day. He never wanted to mess things up, because Megan were seeing someone, for over a year and that was the reason why he never told her, that he got more feelings for her after a few years. Jim supposed that Megan didn't know about his feelings for her. The teenager asked cautiously, where her boyfriend was and why he wasn't here instead of him with her and was spending some nice time with her.

His best friend answered: "He dumped me, because he doesn`t wanted me to meet you anymore. He thought that you were my affair. I explained that I've known you since I moved to this city and I also told him, that you are my best friend and you mean the world to me". After she finished, another teenager who ran past their table emptied a cup of coke on Jim's head. Megan was shocked, she just jumped up and ran away.